BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

Kathy Ruth Neal was born on November 6, 1945 in Oakland, Calif. She was the granddaughter of the silent screen actor Walter Whipple who starred with William S. Hart in the 1916 film "Hell's Hinges." She came to Kansas City in the 1960s when she became a flight attendant for TWA. Flying internationally, she enjoyed the adventure of meeting new people, celebrities, and exploring the world. She stopped flying in the 1970s to raise her daughter Michelle, who was named after the Beatles song. She resumed flying for TWA in the 1980s. Finally, she ended her TWA career in 1989 and made Kansas City her permanent home. To recuperate after surviving breast cancer in 1993, she went hiking on the Appalachian Trail in the Great Smoky Mountains of Tennessee. Inexplicably, she felt compelled to pick up a stick and carve designs in the wood. This led to a 15-year success story in her woodcarving art. Kathy Ruth died on Wednesday, February 11, 2009, of leukemia. She was at home with her dear companion of 20 years, Mary Susan Sanders.

[Susan] Sanders and [Kathy Ruth] Neal met in 1989 and began what Sanders describes as a glorious relationship. Sanders worked as a psychotherapist, and Neal was an artist of some renown. For more than 21 years, the couple enjoyed their partnership quite fully, traveling and loving their busy lives.
